Corrigendum

MGMT genotype modulates the associations between cigarette smoking, dietary antioxidants and breast cancer risk

Jing Shen1,*, Mary Beth Terry2, Marilie D. Gammon3, Mia M. Gaudet1, Susan L. Teitelbaum4, Sybil M. Eng2, Sharon K. Sagiv3, Alfred I. Neugut2 and Regina M. Santella1

1Department of Environmental Health Sciences and 2Department of Epidemiology, Mailman School of Public Health, Columbia University, New York, NY 10032, USA, 3Department of Epidemiology, School of Public Health, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, NC 27599, USA and 4Department of Community and Preventive Medicine, Mt Sinai School of Medicine, New York, NY 10029, USA

This paper was previously published in Carcinogenesis vol.26 no.12 pp.2131–2137, 2005
doi:10.1093/carcin/bgi179

The sentence “…12 months prior to the reference date” in the paragraph describing the questionnaire data (under Materials and Methods) should be corrected to “…12 months prior to the interview.” The authors would like to apologize for this error.