usually temporary reduction in MR without changing significantly the long-term prognosis. The future role of new adjunctive surgical techniques and of percutaneous interventions is not yet determined. Importantly, clinical randomized trials are mandatory to provide guidelines with improved level of evidence.

Conflict of interest: none declared.

References

The list of references is available in the online version of this paper.