Contents

Section A
123 MARÍA JOSÉ BELTRÁN-MENEU, MARINA MURILLO-ARCILA AND LLUÍS ALBARRACÍN Emphasizing visualization and physical applications in the study of eigenvectors and eigenvalues

136 MICHAEL CARR, MARK PRENDERGAST, CORMAC BREEN AND FIONA FAULKNER
How well do engineering students retain core mathematical knowledge after a series of high threshold online mathematics tests?

151 ANA ISABEL SACRISTÁN AND ANGEL PRETELÉN-RICÁRDEZ
Gaining modelling and mathematical experience by constructing virtual sensory systems in maze-videogames

Section B
167 AARON REYES-RODRIGUEZ, MANUEL SANTOS-TRIGO AND FERNANDO
BARRERA-MORA
The construction of a square through multiple approaches to foster learners’ mathematical thinking

The journal provides a forum for the exchange of ideas and experience which contribute to the improvement of mathematics teaching and learning for students from upper secondary-school level through to university first degree level. A distinctive feature of the journal is its emphasis on the applications of mathematics and mathematical modelling within the context of mathematics education worldwide. The journal’s readership consists of mathematics teachers, lecturers, students, researchers and those concerned with curriculum development and educational policy. Articles are welcomedabout the educative use of mathematics. Contributions to the journal are limited to two forms. Section A consists of peer reviewed articles which conform to the normal standards of an academic journal. Section B consists of contributions which may be more tentative, or ad hoc, in scope, such as ideas for problems, materials, expressions of controversial views etc. This is to encourage as wide as possible a range of authors, and the journal is keen to publish material contributed by both teachers and students.

Notes to Contributors

Online submission to Teaching Mathematics and its Applications

All material to be considered for publication in Teaching Mathematics and its Applications shall be submitted, in electronic form, via the journal’s online submission system at:

http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/teamat

Please read the instructions to authors which can be found by following the links at:

https://academic.oup.com/teamat/pages/General_Instructions

The views expressed in the contributed articles are not necessarily those of the Institute of Mathematics and its Applications.

SUBSCRIPTIONS
A subscription to Teaching Mathematics and its Applications comprises 4 issues. Price includes postage by Standard Air. Air rates are available on request. Access includes papers that have recently been accepted but have not yet been included within an issue. Advance Access is updated daily.

Annual Subscription Rate (Volume 36, 4 issues, 2017)

Institutional
